1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1, 4-15, 17-19 and 28-29, drawn to a method of producing antigen-specific T cells, classified in class 435, subclass 373.
  - II. Claims 16 and 22, drawn to a dendritic cell and a pharmaceutical preparation comprising same, classified in class 435, subclass 325.
  - III. Claims 20 and 22, drawn to a suppressor T cell and a pharmaceutical preparation comprising same, classified in class 435, subclass 372.3.
  - IV. Claims 24-27, drawn to a method of treating an individual with a dendritic cell, classified in class 424, subclass 93.7.
  - V. Claims 24-27, drawn to a method of treating an individual with a suppressor T cell, classified in class 424, subclass 93.71.

35

Please note that claims which overlap between different inventions will only be examined with respect to the subject matter which has been elected.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II & III are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the dendritic cell and/or the T cell made by the method of claim I are also obtainable by isolation from peripheral blood, as both cell types exist naturally in the circulation.

Inventions II and III are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are drawn to different cell types which can be isolated from peripheral blood based upon the expression of differential cell surface markers.

Inventions II and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the dendritic cells of Group II are also usable in vitro as antigen presenting cells for mixed lymphocyte reactions or propagating a T cell line.

Inventions III and V are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the T cells of Group III are additionally useful for the determination of antigenic epitopes present in a patient sample.

Inventions IV and V are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are drawn to treatment of a patient with distinct cell types.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

5. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
